

Construction firm honored for local commitment

Current Builders of Pompano Beach was recently honored for its commitment to the local community. (Current Builders/Courtesy)

By Elizabeth Roberts · Contact Reporter
South Florida Sun-Sentinel

Get the Morning Update newsletter, South Florida's best weekday news digest

Enter your email

SIGN UP

Privacy Policy

NOVEMBER 27, 2017, 10:47 AM

It's not every general contractor that gets a day set aside in its honor. But Current Builders became the exception on Nov. 10.

That's the day the city of Pompano Beach recognized the local construction company for how it has conducted business during three decades in the city. And for keeping the headquarters of the $150 million firm within the city, where its current president began as a paperboy, and where the company has operated for 32 of its 45 years in business.

While location matters, however, deeds matter more. The city also is honoring what is the largest general contractor in Pompano Beach for its commitment to free education programs for employees; as well as its mentoring programs for high school students through the ACE Mentorship program; and for its charitable foundation that supports Toys for Tots, Rebuilding Together Broward and the Dolphins Cancer Challenge.

eroberts@sun-sentinel.com